The off-leash parks are valuable resources to dog owners in the community and have seen tremendous use with several hundred dog-and-owner visits weekly. Snohomish County Parks & Recreation has created off-leash dog areas at Cavalero Hill and Willis Tucker Community Parks and plans to create new amenities and more off-leash areas. However, the department needs help from dog owners to keep these facilities operating.

Volunteers needed to assist vulnerable adults

Vulnerable adults living in nursing homes, assisted living facilities and adult family homes throughout Snohomish County are in need of community help.

More than 2,500 such residents lack a volunteer ombudsman, who serves as an advocate, educator, investigator and problem solver on their behalf. Volunteer ombudsmen come from all walks of life, various age groups and educational levels. The common thread is a passion for older adults and persons with disabilities.

The Snohomish County Long Term Care Ombudsman Program will offer a four-day training session on April 13, 14, 20 and 21 for new volunteer ombudsmen. Once certified, volunteers are asked to spend an average of four hours a week on their ombudsman duties. Expenses such as mileage are reimbursable.

The Snohomish County Long Term Care Ombudsman Program is part of a statewide program that protects residents and works with residents and their families to achieve high-quality and compassionate care.
