Thank you. My comment for the 3-15-18 DRB meeting for Point Wells relates to the proposed "unit mix". I have reviewed the submitted Blueprints and have found that the entire offering projects virtually no residential units over 1,000 SF in size. As for Phase 1, I believe there are none. My reaction to this fact is that this would potentially represent a detrimental "marketing miss". That is, the broad base buying public that would be attracted to such a nice, high quality development would have greater needs, as in having many buyers who would be seeking larger units/homes that would suit their lifestyles. Not optioning for this population to participate could be a very costly mistake. In conclusion, I think anyone interested in this project would hope for its best overall optioning for success !!

Hello Paul, and thanks for the email notice. I was wondering does the DRB review process include taking public input as in me sending them/you an EMAIL response, as an alternative to actually attending the meeting and speaking,etc. ?
