PURPOSE:
 To update the section of Snohomish County Code that addresses emergency management.

BACKGROUND:

The proposed updates to Chapter 2.36 Snohomish County Code address our better understanding of the frequency and severity of the hazards that face Snohomish County; the updates also incorporate lessons learned from disasters experienced here and in other local jurisdictions.

In November, 2005, Snohomish County Council adopted code for emergency management. In the subsequent fourteen years, the scientific and emergency management communities learned much more about the significant natural hazards affecting Snohomish County including the Cascadia Subduction Zone, South Whidbey Island Fault, and Glacier Peak Volcano. During that time we experienced a number of disasters including multiple flood and weather events, as well as the 2014 SR 530 ("Oso") Flooding and Mudslides. We also see an increased amount of bulk hazardous materials traveling in, and through, Snohomish County. Concurrent to all of this, the county's population continues to grow quickly and is expected to continue to do so.

In anticipation of the large-scale disaster that could befall us, the revised language being proposed will help ensure continuity of government and of governmental operations. It clarifies roles and authorities that will be essential to Snohomish County's post-disaster response and recovery efforts, and codifies critical preparedness efforts.
