Snohomish County to Close a Section of Arlington Heights Rd for Repairs

Embankment and road repairs will take place from March 30 through April 27 to coincide with school closures

EVERETT, Wash., March 24, 2020 – With school out and fewer cars on the road, Snohomish County will take advantage of the opportunity to rebuild a 130-foot long section in the 23100 block of Arlington Heights Rd located northeast of Arlington. In order to perform the needed repairs, Snohomish County Public Works Road Maintenance crews will close the road from March 30 until April 27, coinciding with the statewide school closures stemming from the COVID-19 pandemic.

The embankment supporting the road segment, located in the 23100 block, is settling. The project will excavate and rebuild the embankment, along with the road. A signed detour will be put in place using SR 530 and 115th Street NE (Arnot Road). Emergency responders have been contacted by the county and will make the necessary changes so that service is not disrupted during this four week project.

Arlington Heights Rd Improvements

When: March 30 through April 27, 2020

Where: 23100 block of Arlington Heights Rd
Northeast of Arlington, Wash.

What: Snohomish County Public Works Road Maintenance crews will excavate and then rebuild an approximately 130-foot long section of Arlington Heights Road along with the corresponding embankment.

Snohomish County Public Works Road Maintenance crews continue to work during the COVID-19 pandemic emergency. Road Maintenance has implemented many safety measures to address the current situation. Crews are also instructed to use social distancing and other techniques while in the field to prevent the spread of COVID-19 while insuring the Snohomish County transportation system remains operational and safe for all residents.
