June 2021 Declared Farmers Market Month in Snohomish County

The Snohomish County Council, along with the County Executive, have declared June 2021 as Snohomish County Farmers Market Month. Farmers markets spur economic growth and give farms and other small businesses the opportunity to market and grow their business.

"Farmers markets are a great way for the public to access fresh food and local products, and for farmers and small businesses to develop a direct relationship with their customers," said Council Chair Stephanie Wright.

"I appreciate the staff and many volunteers who bring these markets to life, they are a vibrant part of our communities. Farmers markets across our region offer a critical connection between our local food growers, craft businesses, and our residents," added Council Vice-Chair Megan Dunn.

The Snohomish County Council strongly encourages all Snohomish County residents and businesses to support our local farmers and farmers markets in their local community this summer, which is even more important now with the hardships faced by so many in our community over the last year.

"Celebrating the great work our Farmers and Farmers Markets do in our communities and recognizing their importance during the month of June is a great way to kick-off the outdoor summer season," said Councilmember Sam Low.

"Farmers markets are a staple in many of our communities. After a year of isolation and separation, these events bring community together and that is so important, now more than ever," added Councilmember Nate Nehring.

"We have seen first-hand in our communities how essential our local farmers are, and I couldn't think of a better way to kick off the beginning of our outdoor season than with recognizing the importance of farmers and farmers markets," said Councilmember Jared Mead.

We congratulate and recognize the continuance of existing and new farmers markets in Snohomish County:
